

Class of 1915 Coming Back for Reunion 25 Years After Graduation; Senator Tom Connally to Make Address; was Speaker Quarter Century Ago Here

Twenty-five years ago in June the graduating class of the Cameron High School numbered 43.

The class at that time voted to hold a reunion 25 years hence.

On Thursday representatives of that class were in Cameron to arrange for the reunion.

A. Clarence Smith who learned printing under Matt. B. Bailey now with the Herald plant, is one of the moving spirits of the reunion. He is now professor of Journalism in Baylor University, Waco and has been elected to arrange the reunion in Cameron.

J. E. Watts was superintendent of schools in Cameron in 1915, and is now dead.

The program for graduation, as always, took into consideration obtaining a speaker and after much deliberation Superintendent Watts mentioned a certain young lawyer who was struggling along with a meager practice in Marlin.

Not many had heard much about this young lawyer at that time, but he had gained a considerable local reputation as a speaker. So the class extended an invitation to Tom Connally to deliver the address.

Connally is now a member of the United States Senate from Texas and also served for many years in the House of Representatives in Congress.

Senator Connally has agreed to return to Cameron for the reunion to deliver the address and the date of the reunion will depend on adjournment of Congress.

Plans call for a two day reunion with a baccalaureate sermon and commencement exercises.

GAS COMPANY PLANS DEFENSE CO-OPERATION

The gas industry's responsibility in the national program, ways to improve customer service, and preparations for meeting the peak demands for winter fuel were studied by more than 400 Lone Star Gas System foremen, managers and other key men who have just completed their annual conference in Dallas, according to J. R. Bush, manager of the Cameron district, who attended the meeting.

"The Lone Star Gas System is equipped better than ever before to furnish an adequate supply of gas in the face of extreme demands," he said. "This will be particularly beneficial in the national defense program where defense industries must have a dependable supply in order to carry on operations requiring natural gas service. An interconnected system of thousands of miles of pipe lines bringing gas from more than 1200 wells in Texas and Oklahoma gives an adequate supply under the most extreme demands."

"Methods of helping consumers get maximum service from heating equipment through minimum operating costs was one of the chief concerns of the conference. According to a survey, many customers fail to utilize their present heating equipment in a manner to obtain the most healthful and beneficial results. Because of this condition the company has shouldered the responsibility of educating customers in the proper use of heating appliances. Newspaper advertising is one of the ways by which we are teaching customers healthful heating habits. This campaign is incidental to the sale of appliances. We are trying to show how to use present equipment to get the best results from the standpoints of health and efficiency."

Lions Sponsor Negro Football Here Thursday Night

The Lions Club will sponsor the negro football game Thursday night, October 10th at Yoe High Athletic Field.

The Cameron Bulldogs of the O. J. Thomas high school will play the Georgetown negro team.

The Daily Herald learned that the Lions are taking extra precaution to police the grounds to keep white boys from disturbing the routine of the game and other exercises. The club will have the full co-operation of City Marshal Gene Smith and the police department.

No one will be admitted to the field who does not pay an admission and a repetition of the reprehensible conduct of white boys who ministered the negroes during the Taylor game here last week will be severely dealt with.

Ed Gunn of Rockdale visited in the city Monday.

MRS. RUDOLPH MARAK DIES EARLY TUESDAY

Mrs. Rudolph A. Marak, 36, died in a local hospital at 9 a. m. Tuesday.

She became suddenly ill Monday afternoon from an internal hemorrhage and was taken to the hospital where a blood transfusion was given by her husband and where an operation was performed. Her condition was regarded as most critical and although every surgical and medical service was at hand little hopes were held for her recovery.

Mrs. Marak before her marriage to Rudolph Marak who is assistant cashier of First National Bank was Miss Albina Kulak of Bryan. She was a graduate nurse from the Cameron hospital school of nursing and was married 8 years ago.

First National Bank was closed at noon and will remain closed until after the funeral hour.

The death of Mrs. Marak who had hundreds of friends throughout the city and county brought deep sorrow to thousands of people and the entire city was shocked to learn that she had passed away after a sudden illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Marak recently bought a new home and enjoyed the friendship of a large circle of friends. She was prominent in religious and social circles in Cameron.

Funeral services will be held from the Catholic Church at Marak Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock with Rev. K. Kacer, pastor, reading the Mass.

Interment will be made in the Catholic cemetery at Marak with Marek-Burns Funeral Home directing arrangements.

Surviving Mrs. Marak are her husband, Rudolph Marak, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kulak of Bryan, and two sisters and six brothers.

Columbus Day Will Be Observed Sunday

Knights of Columbus will observe Columbus Day on Sunday, October 13th.

Columbus Day falls on Saturday this year but the local Council has arranged for the celebration on Sunday.

Members will attend 8 o'clock mass and receive Holy Communion in a body. Rev. George J. Duda, chaplain of the council will be the celebrant of the mass. After the mass breakfast will be served at the hall to members.

In the evening Knights and their friends will be given a welcome at the hall for an extended entertainment of speaking and music.

BURDICK-SHUGART

Clyde J. Burdick and Miss Cleo Shugart were married Saturday night by Judge Jeff T. Kemp at his home. Both are residents of Wilderville where they will make their home.

IT IS REPREHENSIBLE

Last night at Yoemen Field the Cameron Bulldogs, colored, and the Taylor Ducks, colored, played an orderly and interesting game of football.

The game attracts no more interest than the news of it demands except for a reprehensible spectacle of misconduct on the part of white boys who acted as if the Negroes had paid admission to see them perform rather than their own football teams.

It is positively unpleasant to scold and somebody will get mad at the Little Daily. We cannot help here saying that the Negroes in Cameron have had the support of the white people and the Lions Club has been most considerate in aiding their athletic program.

The conduct of the Negroes was very commendable. City Marshal Gene Smith kept the boys off the field during play time. When they saw they could not intimidate the Negroes on the inside they took to the track around the field and at the ends of the gridiron.

At the half the Taylor band, composed of some half dozen pieces and a drum major, hesitated long. The Marshal ran the boys off the field and took the ball away from them. They immediately ganged up around the Negro band and when finally the Negroes began a march around the field, the white boys made fun, marched ahead, alongside and behind them. It became so disgusting the Negroes gave up, but not the White boys. It was a Hoodlum night and they made the most of it.

Some of the white boys were so small they may have lost their diapers running around the field.

The Negroes all came to the south stands but the White boys followed them. They went to their cars and still the White boys followed them.

City Marshal Smith left the field at one time and went to the rear of the South Stands to run the White boys away from the Negroes.

Adult whites patronize these games. They enjoy them and are glad to encourage athletics among the Negroes.

One cannot help thinking what the reaction would be if Negroes ganged a procession of white students. For shame! If such conduct on the part of white boys continues, it can have but one result, discontinuance of the Negro games.

Boys who so act should be denied the privilege of the field unless their parents accompany them, and in no case should they be permitted to leave the stands while a Negro football game is in progress.

Thanks to City Marshal Gene Smith for his efforts to stop this shameful conduct on the part of white people. The Negroes were much better in their public behavior.

ACCEPTS PASTORATE AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. C. W. Sanders, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Meridian, has accepted the call to serve as pastor of First Baptist Church in Cameron.

Rev. Sanders has served his present church for more than three years, and has been in the work for ten years.

He and Mrs. Sanders are expected to arrive in Cameron on or about the 16th of October to take charge of the work on Sunday, October 20th.

MRS. REBECCA HENLEY DIES AT GAUSE WEDNESDAY

Funeral services were held for Mrs. Rebecca Henley Thursday at the Apostolic Church in Gause and burial made in the Pin Oak Cemetery.

She is survived by two sons, Zoi Henley of Gause and W. H. Henley of Milano.

KILLEEN DEFEATS EAGLES

The Killeen Kangaroos defeated Georgetown Eagles in Georgetown Friday night 19 to 13. The Kangaroos are stronger this year. They come to Cameron November 1st. The Kangaroos have a passing attack this year and big, fast team.

B COACH RESIGNS FROM STAFF HERE

R. A. Patterson, member of the coaching staff of the Yoe High School and director of the B team in football, has resigned and it was understood had accepted employment in Houston.

It was understood Mr. Patterson's resignation was more or less unknown until Sunday, the day he left Cameron.

The B team is facing a game this week and has been without a coach.

The Daily Herald was told that J. M. Ruggles had been offered the place by Superintendent Perrin, that a teacher could be secured to take his place at $1,000 per year. The difference in salary the teacher would draw and the amount now being paid Ruggles is said to have been offered to Ruggles and that he accepted it.

When the board met they declined to take the recommendations of the superintendent because Ruggles had already been given a raise, the Daily Herald learned.

It was not known whether any other arrangements had been made by the board for a successor to Mr. Patterson. The whole transaction is typical of the lack of co-operation that has had a bad effect on athletics.

Men who coach football should be considered by all factors in the setup before he is selected. The Daily Herald learned that there was also no general consultation and as a result the Board declined to enter in to contract on the recommendation of the superintendent.

Newspapers are not invited to attend board meetings and therefore are not always in position to report the facts promptly. For this reason Mr. Patterson's resignation was not known until Wednesday morning.

News stories from the School Board are usually prepared by the Superintendent and handed out and are often too incomplete to be of any value to the reading public.

Mr. Patterson had been serving as scout for the coaching staff and his resignation and failure to provide a competent man to replace him has greatly handicapped the Yoemen.

NATIONAL WEEK FOR BUSINESS WOMEN HERE

Business and Professional Women will observe annual national week for their organization and Mayor Chas. C. Smith has issued the following proclamation:

Whereas the National Federation of Business & Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., an organization representing 1650 clubs and 73,000 members, organized in every State of the United States; the District of Columbia, Hawaii and other nations is during the week of October 6-12 observing National Business Women's Week, and

Whereas, the object of the organization is to fit itself to assume leadership in thinking on economic problems and their social implications with a view toward helping in the establishment, through scientific methods of conditions to stimulate co-operation between federation clubs and other organizations, in that women may meet with today;

Whereas, the observation of this Week October 6-12 as National Women's Week in the City of Cameron will help carry forward the objective and theme of State and National Federation of Business & Professional Women's Club work;

Now, therefore, I, C. C. Smith, Mayor of Cameron, Texas, do hereby proclaim the week of October 6-12 as National Business Women's week, and do invite the City of Cameron to join in with the Cameron Business & Professional Women's Club in the observance of this week.

In witness whereof, I have here-with set my hand and cause the seal of the City of Cameron, Texas, to be affixed this 6th day of October, A. D. 1940.

Signed,
CHAS. C. SMITH.

TAYLOR BEATS ROSEBUD

The Taylor Ducks, considered the No. 1 team of the conference now that Rockdale has been defeated, were able to gain an easy victory over Rosebud Friday night 26 to 0. The Panthers were on the defensive throughout the game.

HUSBAND SLAIN IN ROCKDALE SHOOTING

A mother whose heart was torn because she could not have her three year old baby boy to mother and care for at night, is charged with murder and the father of the baby is dead.

Mrs. Flossie Cunningham of Rockdale, shot her husband, O. J. Cunningham, to death in a grocery store shortly before sundown Thursday.

Martial differences led to their separation on Sunday, September 29.

Mrs. Cunningham told Deputy Sheriff, C. D. McCall, that she had agreed to let her husband have the baby in day time, provided the child was returned to her each night. Mrs. Cunningham said her husband not only had not kept his agreement but refused to let her see the baby at any time.

Shortly before nightfall on Thursday Mrs. Cunningham walked into a grocery store in Rockdale and opened fire on her husband. In all four shots were fired, one of them entered the back of Cunningham's head, the other three shattering plate glass windows in the store and scattering pedestrians.

Cunningham died shortly after 9 p. m. in a Cameron Hospital.

Mrs. Cunningham was placed under arrest shortly after the shooting by officers W. C. Colvin and C. H. Landis. Charges were filed in the court of Justice Leo Harris in Rockdale.

Criminal District Attorney Morrison went to Rockdale early Friday to conduct an investigation. It was understood here that Mrs. Cunningham had detailed to Mr. Morrison a statement touching on the shooting and the causes that led to the death of her husband.

Cunningham was born deaf. He followed the trade of barber for a greater part of his younger days.

On September 24, 1935, Cunningham was indicted for assault with intent to murder, Mrs. Floyd Horton of Rockdale.

Cunningham, according to testimony, attempted to shoot Mrs. Horton near a mail box where he had secreted himself with a gun. Several shots were fired but Mrs. Horton escaped. Cunningham was convicted and sentenced to the state penitentiary. He served one year and was paroled.

The body was being held at Rockdale pending funeral arrangements.

Airport for City Vanishes As Senate Refuses Expenditure

Cameron's Airport vanished like prosperity under AAA when the United States Senate refused to pass an appropriation for the construction of bases in central Texas.

Thinking citizens believed such an ambitious plan could not be realized and the existence of air fields along a chain of locations in Central Texas seemed fantastic.

The plan was called ridiculous in the Senate. It was sponsored by the Civil Aeronautics Division of the National Defense Act.

Hundreds of towns were listed and in all 4900 air fields were proposed. There was no likelihood that Cameron would share in this plan, nor any other of the small towns first listed.

DRAFT BOARDS

Draft Boards in Milam County were named late Tuesday by Governor W. Lee O'Daniel as follows:

Board No. 1 to be located in Rockdale: John Weed, W. N. Strickler and H. H. Camp.

Board No. 2 located in Cameron: J. B. White, P. W. Davis and Les R. Clore.

Leonard Blaylock Named to F. B. I.

Leonard Blaylock, Cameron attorney, was notified today of his appointment to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Mr. Blaylock will leave Cameron Friday for Washington where he will begin at once active duty with the F. B. I.

He graduated from law school at Baylor University and was recently admitted to the bar. A graduate of Yoe High School in Cameron, he was a football star and member of the famous regional championship team in 1936.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. RUDOLPH MARAK

Funeral services for Mrs. Rudolph Marak, were held Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Marak Catholic Church.

Father K. Kacer, pastor of the church read the Mass. Interment was made in the Marak cemetery.

Mrs. Marak died in a local hospital following a sudden illness on Tuesday. An operation failed to save her life.

Rudolph Marak husband, is assistant cashier of the First National Bank. The band was closed Tuesday and a portion of the day Wednesday for the funeral.

Pall bearers were: William Sell, H. M. Hefley, Julius Janicek, John Marak, Neil Perry and Joe Parma. Nurses at the Cameron Hospital were honorary pall bearers and were in their uniforms. Out of town nurses to attend were Mrs. Rube Johnson and Miss Irene Starnes, graduate nurses of the Cameron Hospital.

The funeral was directed by the Marek-Burns Funeral Home and was impressive in its beauty and appointments.

The body was at the residential funeral home of Marek-Burns Tuesday night and Wednesday until the funeral hour.

Surviving relatives are: Rudolph Marak, husband; two sisters and six brothers as follows: Mrs. N. T. Perry of Austin, Miss Minnie Kulak of Houston; Joe Kulak of Baytown, Frank Kulak of Baytown, John Kulak of Kilgore, Ignace Kulak of College station, Jerome Kulak of Talso, Eddie Kulak of Longview.

Miss Brock is a member of the Senior Class for 1940 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Brock.

The contest this year was well patronized and much interest was shown in the election of the Sweetheart for the Band.

Inspection Complete For Extension Free Delivery in City

Inspection of the free delivery routes in Cameron and other survey work here has been completed by Postal Inspector and Postmaster John R. Hays.

So far the City Government does not know what is expected as a means of securing extension of free delivery to all parts of the city.

The council stands ready to meet all government requirements possible to bring free mail delivery to the west and southern sections of the city.

The immediate demand is that the city contact the Department to see what may be done here to facilitate this matter.

Ruggles Takes Up Duties as B Coach

J. M. Ruggles has accepted the place of coach for the B football team, he told the Daily Herald last night.

Mr. Ruggles was prevailed upon by the board to take the place without an increase in salary. He succeeds R. T. Patterson as coach and will assist Coach L. C. Wood in scouting games. He was basketball coach here for several years.

Resignation of Patterson, known to school authorities last week, was revealed to the public in the afternoon edition of the Daily Herald Wednesday.

Following disclosure that the resignation of Patterson was not released as news, the Daily Herald adopted a realistic policy on school happenings and hopes to bring complete and correct information on what happens in the future.

Things to Say

To Get Out of Buying a Modern Automatic
Water Heater

1. "Our old heater has been going for twelve years and it looks like it is good for twelve more."
2. "I can't afford a new heater just now. We will have to put up with the one we have even if we do have to wait for hot water sometimes."
3. "Our present heater might take a lot of time but it still heats the water."
4. "We don't all want to bathe at once so we don't need a heater of large capacity."

Really?

An old water heater can be like an old range — it still cooks. But how efficiently? Crippled efficiency can be expensive. A modern household needs instant hot water to keep it running smoothly so Dad can get to work and children to school on time. Waiting for hot water delays the entire household. Any one can afford a modern insulated automatic gas water heater because its efficiency saves gas and because one can be bought on the easiest kind of terms. So modernize and learn what can be said about time, effort and money being saved.

"So through the night rode Paul Revere."

Today, America depends on the Telephone

"One, if by land, and two, if by sea."

Waiting on the outskirts of Charlestown, Massachusetts, Paul Revere fixed his eyes on the moonlit tower of the Old North Church. Suddenly the light of a lantern pierced the darkness . . . then another. The white road echoed the pound of galloping hoofs as the midnight rider called the sleeping countryside to arms.

One hundred years later, in an attic only a few miles from the starting point of history's most famous ride, Alexander Graham Bell gave the nation a faster, better method of communication — the telephone.

Today America needs no midnight rides like Paul Revere's. For this country now is protected by a vast telephone system owned by more than 600,000 American people, employing nearly 300,000 skilled men and women, and used by Americans from coast to coast.

In emergencies today, Americans turn to the telephone, knowing they will receive fast, dependable service—a telephone service backed by the nation-wide resources of the Bell System.

YOEMEN BEAT TIGERS IN HARD FOUGHT GAME

Brilliant line play with occasional flashes of backfield running, gave the Yoemen a well earned victory over the Rockdale Tigers Friday night. The Tigers scored two points on a touch back when Captain Tindall fumbled behind his goal. Here is the play by play report:

FIRST QUARTER

Captain Tindall lost the toss and Rockdale elected to receive. Cameron defending the west goal. Salach got off a long end over end kick that sent the ball across the Tiger goal. Krause fumbled on the first play, losing 5 yards. Krause made two yards at end with Aranda on the tackle. Aranda turned in one of the best games of any lineman in Yoe history. He is the Yoemen's right end. Krause then tried left end but found Kunz master of that department, and star of the game. Krause was held for no gain. Newton kicked to Hays who fumbled but recovered. Both teams were nervous. Bell, pile driving, hit center for 5 yards. Bell on a fake hevers made 1 yard at center and Tindall off tackle got 3 yards. It was short of a first down by inches. Tindall whose punting kept the Tigers back in their own territory much of the night got off a punt that sent the ball out of bounds on the Tiger 15. Ledwell got 2 yards off tackle. Newton, the Tiger big hope was stopped for no gain by Bell. Newton was again stopped for no gain by Walschak. The big Yoemen tackle stood out in line play throughout the game. Newton, when he did get under way dealt the Yoemen much misery. Newton kicked to Hays who fumbled again as he was tackled hard. The Yoemen recovered. Rockdale was offside and were penalized 5 yards. Hays tried a pass but it was poor and wide. Hays got 4 yards off tackle. Cobb on the same thrust got 2 yards and a first down. Hays got only two yards around his own left end. A pass to Cobb was wide and incomplete. On the next play Hays fumbled and Rockdale recovered. On the first play Krause was tackled by Kunz behind the lines and thrown for a 5 yard loss. Krause, fleet Tiger back broke loose on the next play and made 18 yards, finally being brought down by Nicholson. On the next play Newton lost 6 yards on an off tackle thrust. Krause got 5 yards but Newton on the next play was held for no gain by Salach forcing a punt. Hays was driven out of bounds after a 9 yard return. Bell on a fake picked up 4 yards at center and got two yards more on the same play. Tindall was thrown for a 3 yard loss on an end around play. Tindall punted. Hale was stopped by Walschak for no gain. Walschak stopped Ledwell cold for no gain with Kunz in on the tackle at left end. Newton quick kicked but Hays, playing heads up football made a 25 yard return as the quarter ended.

SECOND QUARTER

The Yoemen began a drive as Hays got 6 yards around end. Hays passed to Aranda for 8 yards. It was a sensational catch and good for a first down. Hays made 9 yards on an off tackle play and the ball was on the Tiger 2 yard line. Hays got a yard and a half and a first down and went over from the one foot line for a touchdown on the next play. Salach kicked goal and the score was Yoemen 7, Tigers 0. Salach kicked off and Ledwell returned 10 yards. Newton went through tackle for 4 yards. Hurry on a tripple reverse was thrown for an 8 yard loss by Aranda who could not be taken out. Krause picked up 5 off tackle. Newton got off a poor kick that went out of bounds. Hays fumbled again, the third of the night. Rockdale recovered. Hurry got two yards and Salach was hurt on the play. The Yoemen called time out. Newton made 9 yards at center on two tries and a first down. Krause was stopped for no gain by Bell and Cobb. Hurry made 6 yards and Gooch was hurt on the play. Newton made 3 yards at center and a first down. Krause got 4 yards around end with Cobb making tackle. Ledwell was stopped for no gain at center. Newton driving off tackle made 8 yards and first down. Krause got a yard at center. Newton and Krause both failed to gain. The Yoemen line held like a stone wall and the thrust was stopped. The ball went over. Tindall fumbled on the pass back and Rockdale got 2 points as Tindall was tackled after he recovered behind his own goal. The Yoemen kicked off from their own 20 after the touchback. Newton made a ten yard return and Brashear was hurt on the play. The half ended as the Tigers failed to gain as Kunz made a tackle on Dockall. Score: Yoemen 7; Rockdale 2.

THIRD QUARTER

Newton kicked off to Cobb who made a 6 yard return. Hays picked up two yards and was thrown for a 2 yard loss on the next play by Zimmerman and Brown. Hays made 4 yards off tackle. Tindall kicked for 37 yards to Hale who was tackled by Brashear. In two tries Krause made 5 yards. Newton picked up 3 yards, stopped by Bell. Newton kicked to Hays who ran it back 25 yards. Bell on a fake at center picked up 1 yards. Tindall lost 2 on a reverse as Brown and Backhaus broke through. Tindall barely got off the kick as he dropped the ball. Krause hit center for 7 yards. Newton made 3. It was short by inches. Kunz broke through and threw Krause for a 4 yard loss. Newton kicked over the goal and the ball was placed in play on the Yoemen 20. Hays made 3 yards off tackle. Dycus replaced Gooch at guard. Hays got four yards. Tindall on a fake kick tried to pass but it was wide to Hays. Tindall then got off a 48 yard kick to Hale who was stopped cold by Walschak. Newton hit center for 3 yards. Arthur Cobb coming up from backfield position threw Krause for a 5 yard loss. Hale backing up to pass lost 11 yards when Kunz broke through from end to smear him behind the line. Newton kicked out of bounds on the 50. Hays made 8 yards in two tries. Hays pass to Kunz was wide. Hurry replaced Hale. On this play Tindall backed up to kick but the ball went to the short man Bell who sneaked through center and side stepped two would be tacklers and was brought down by the safety man after he had made 25 yards and a first down as the quarter ended. Score: Yoemen 7; Tigers 2.

FOURTH QUARTER

Both teams were slowing down. Gooch went back in for Dycus and Hale replaced Hurry. Hays made 5 yards at center and a first down. He lost a half yard on the next play. Then came a sensational play. Hays hands ball off to Bell who laterals to Cobb and the Yoemen half back raced to the 1 yard line. Tindall took the ball over for a touchdown but the referee ruled Tindall's knee touched the ground. Hays was thrown for a 5 yard loss trying to make around end. The ball went over. Newton kicked out well and Hays was tackled by Brown and Backhaus after a good return. Bell got 4 yards at center. A reverse Hays to Tindall made 2 yards. Bell got 4 on a fake kick. Tindall then punted out of bounds on the Tiger 10. Salach was hurt on the play but stayed in the game. Krause made 5 yards then hit center for 8 yards, stopped by Bell. Newton kicked out of bounds on the Yoemen 45. Hays made 2 at center. Hays pass to Tindall was wide and incomplete. Newton almost intercepted. Tindall got off a great kick to the Tiger goal and Hale returned 8 yards. Newton failed to gain as Salach broke through. Hale made 1 yard. Newton almost was clear but was stopped by Cobb. Hale then passed to Dockall for 25 yards and a first down. Newton failed to gain as Bell stopped him. Dycus replaced Gooch. Newton made 1 yard at center and punted out of bounds on the 2 yard line. Bell at center made 1 yard as the game ended. Final score: Yoemen 7; Rockdale 2.

THOMAS BULLDOGS PLAY SECOND GAME THURSDAY

The O. J. Thomas high Bulldogs will play one of its hardest battles here Thursday night at the Yoe High Athletic field against R. A. Westbrook's Georgetown Eagles.

The Bulldogs prepare hard for all games but practice harder to defeat Georgetown.

This will be the second game of the season for the Bulldogs, having defeated Taylor last week. Tickets will be on sale Wednesday and Thursday.

This game is being sponsored by the Cameron Lion's Club. The probable starting lineup will be Whiteside and Hoyle at ends, Bragner and Whiteside at guards, McFarlan and Poole at tackles, Co-Captain Johnson at center, Anderson at R. H., Gipson at F. B., Heard at Q. B., and Reeves at L. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marak, Margaret Marak and Novilla Urban of Ad Hall were business visitors in Saturday.

BRITAIN WILL OPEN BURMA ROAD 17TH

German troops marched into Rumania today but there was no explanation for this new invasion on the part of Hitler.

In some quarters the belief was expressed that Rumanian oil must be had for German war needs and the Germans have taken over another country. In other quarters belief was expressed that the Axis powers are now extending their conquest over the Balkans.

In London Russian quarters said that the Soviet are disturbed over the Balkan developments. Rumania was generally regarded as a Russian rather than a German or Italian sphere of influence.

Developments may come fast. The Italian press indicated something unusual in the way of war news because Mussolini reviewed troops. An early report said Italian troops had advanced into Rumania but this was denied in Rome.

Turkey was believed to be deeply concerned over this development but is under no obligation to fight unless Greece is attacked.

Whether Germany and Italy plans to cut through the Balkans and the Black Sea, thence to the east through Asia Minor to avoid a Mediterranean war, remains to be seen. A juncture with Japan may be thus effected and the Indo-China seizure may be an early development. A canal across the Malay peninsula and the capture of Singapore could serve the Germans well if they intend to get a route to supplies from the east.

Russia was not advised of any such move, it was said. Great Britain was said to have decided on opening the Burma road after the agreement with Japan to close it, expires on October 17.

The road was closed in an effort to appease Japan. It was vital to China. The English cared little about China. Now that Japan has joined with Germany and Italy the British consider Japan is at war with her.

Russia has been advised by Britain that the road will be opened. The British did not advise Russia of its closing.

Ambassador Reinhardt from the United States was reported confer-ing with the Soviets and there was a rumor an understanding might be reached between Russia, America and Britain. No one who has followed the course of the Soviets believe them as co-operating with the Democracies. Rather does it appear certain Russia will never show any resentment over the German grab of Rumania but will actually assist the Axis powers wage war on Democratic countries.

The Petain government at Vichy declared today France will never declare war on England nor be drawn into the Axis orbit.

Winston Churchill said England will re-open the Burma road so China may receive war supplies. Japan will thereupon declare war. There was a rumor of a peace move between Japan and China.

Beatrice Walschak who is attending Texas University is spending the week end at home.

For Liberty and Freedom, yes— but they need land!

America's first hundred years saw it a refuge for the victims of persecution, both religious and economic. They came to America for Freedom, and they chose America because there was land. You had to own land before you could be free. They built the Democracy that made all men free, knowing that land gave them power to do so. The ownership of land is now a strength in our Democracy; participate in it!

LAND IS WEALTH

Once you had to be a landholder to vote. Once ownership of land was a requisite for the rights of citizenship. Now all of us take part in our government, but the yearning for the land has not left our people—learn the security of owning land. . .

Thomas Bulldogs in Win Over Taylor

The Thomas High School Bulldogs, colored, began their season here Friday night with a win over the Taylor Black Ducks.

The Bulldogs got away to a good start. Captain Heard put across the first touchdown in six tries at the Taylor line and kicked goal. The final score was 20 to 0.

The other two touchdowns came in the final quarter of the game. The Thomas Bulldogs made 21 first downs while Taylor could get only two.

Gipson and Heard stood out on offense for the Cameron backfield and Anderson and Reeves on defense. The entire Thomas line played superb football.

The crowd was small due to the fact the game had not been previously advertised.

Puison McLerran of Forrest Grove was a visitor in Cameron Monday.

Will Spiegel of Sharp was a business visitor in Cameron Monday.

JAPS APOLOGISE FOR ROUGHING U. S. SAILOR

Tension grew in the Balkans today because strained and there was an immediate prospect of an open said that in Tokyo that the Japs had not figured on the United States as seriously concerned over developments.

Japan today apologized to the United States for a recent occurrence in which a regiment of Japanese succeeded after a desperate battle break.

Rumania has lined up, with Germany and Nazi troops have marched into Rumania. Elsewhere in the Balkans, especially in Yugoslavia there was a growing fear that Italy and Germany are planning a coup in the Balkans, taking over all the small countries and overrunning Greece.

Russia was said to be massing troops on the Rumanian frontier as a precaution against German and Italian conquest aims. Whether the Soviet is bluffing remains to be seen.

In the far east tension had somewhat subsided. In Washington feeling was much better over the rift with Japan. The United States has placed an embargo on wheat to Japan.

Japan was showing great concern over the American attitude. It was in overcoming an American sailor who was beaten slightly. Another report was the sailor was drunk and in that case it is easy to understand how the Japs got the upper hand of him.

British bombing planes were reported to be ranging wide over Germany in destructive blows at military centers. The great Krupp gun works at Essen was bombed and badly damaged, a report to the Daily Herald said.

Mrs. Hubert Jistel of Ad Hall was a visitor in Cameron Wednesday.

BULLDOGS TO PLAY IN CAMERON TONIGHT

The Cameron Bulldogs of the C. J. Thomas high school renew their conference play tonight when they meet the Georgetown Black Eagles in our second conference game of the year.

The game is being sponsored by the Lions Club and citizens of Cameron are urged to patronize this game because of the encouragement to negro athletics and because proceeds from the game will be used for welfare work by the Lions.

City Marshal Gene Smith said early today there will be no repetition of intimidation on the part of white boys such as was shown in the recent game with Taylor.

All white people who enter the gate will be required to take seats in the stands and will not be permitted on the field. The Lions Club is to be commended for this fine gesture toward negro athletics and the social benefit fund.

The game promises to be a good one and many white citizens are expected to be on hand for the game.

Joe Bill White of Texas A & M. College is spending the week end here with relatives and friends.

Vegetable Laxative With Proved Feature

The punctual, satisfying relief from constipation and its headaches, biliousness, bad breath, so often experienced by users of this laxative, is mainly due to its combination of purely vegetable ingredients.

BLACK-DRAUGHT'S principal ingredient has high medical recognition as an "intestinal tonic-laxative"; helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles.

A little of this spicy, aromatic product by simple directions at bedtime, generally allows time for a good night's rest; acts gently and thoroughly next morning.

Next time, take time-tested, economical BLACK-DRAUGHT.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 13.

The Golden Text is: "He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto God the Lord belong the issues from death" (Psalms 68:20.)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing ye shall receive" (Matthew 21:22.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Self-forgetfulness, purity, and affection are constant prayers. Practice not profession, understanding not belief, gain the ear and right hand of omnipotence and they assuredly will down infinite blessings" (page 15.)

ALIEN REGISTRATION

Alien registration is increasing, Miss Dorothy Matula said Monday. Of the 350 who have registered to date, the majority have been Mexicans.

On Saturday the total registration was 48 and up to noon Monday 23 aliens had registered.

"Build-Up" Good News For Suffering Women

Much of women's periodic distress may be unnecessary!

Many who suffer from headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain, other symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition are helped by CARDUL.

Main way it helps relieve periodic distress is by increasing appetite and flow of gastric juice. Thus it often aids digestion; helps build strength, energy, resistance to periodic disturbances.

Others find help for periodic discomfort this way: Start a few days before and take CARDUL until "the time" has passed. Women have used CARDUL more than 50 years.

STOCKLAS-LANGER

Miss Stefie Rosalie Langer and Wm. J. Stocklas were married in a double ring ceremony Tuesday morning at St. Monica's Catholic Church with Rev. George Duda, officiating. The bride's and the groom's attendants entered the church in couples and took their places at the altar.

preceding the bride and groom who also came in together. Miss Emilie Krotsechil was maid of honor and wore a lovely orchid taffeta gown. Mary Hlavacek, niece of the bride, was bride's maid and was dressed in pink taffeta. The best man was Willie Hlavacek and Joseph Stocklas, Jr., brother of the groom, was groomsmen. The bride chose a dress of white satin in princess style with a sweetheart neck line. Her long veil of white silk tulle was draped from a coronet of orange blossoms. In her arms she carried a bouquet of white carnations and bridal wreath tied with white satin streamers. Miss Langer is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Langer; Mr. Stocklas, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stocklas. The couple will make their home on a farm near Cameron. Mrs. Ed Pavelka of Maysfield baked a beautiful wedding cake and at noon served it to the immediate families and friends. Following a wedding supper at 5 p. m. Tuesday a dance was given at the National Hall.

ULTIMATUM DUE TODAY

Japan will declare war on the United States if the American government does not abandon its policy of insisting on the status quo in the Far East.

Japan will declare war on the United States if the embargo is not raised and essential commodities permitted to reach that country.

Thus war seemed inevitable today as the Japanese Foreign Minister, in an interview with a world wide news agency laid down the gauntlet to the United States.

A copy of the interview was laid on the desk of Secretary of State Cordell Hull in Washington. The Secretary was due to make a statement this afternoon. As an alternative there would be no comment.

Japan was said by the Foreign Minister to be ready to spring to arms at a moment's notice and is considering fighting America without further delay because, said the government officials, Japan has lost all hope of reaching any understanding with America.

The American people are backward. They do not understand the new order in the Far East, said the government.

Adolph Hitler and Benito Mussolini held a rapid fire conference at Brenner Pass in Italy early today. They discussed the United States and also were said to have reached an agreement, concluding an immediate complete settlement with France so that French arms can be released for a war on England.

The Dictators visualize France now fighting on their side.

There was no belief any of this was the real cause of the conference.

Fear of the United States and her aid to Britain coupled with the belief that America will soon enter the war, is causing havoc with German and Italian nerves.

Japan is acting her part under the Axis agreements to engage America. It was predicted that Japan will declare war on America within the next few hours or perhaps days. That was a part of the three power alliance. America must not give England the aid she needs to win. Hitler and Mussolini will not permit that if possible.

All eyes are on Washington. Will the U. S. back up? If she does not it means war. What will the far eastern policy of the United States be on Saturday? The same as Friday and last month? If so it means Japan will declare war at once.

SCHOOLS TO CLOSE

The Daily Herald learned today through an unofficial source that the School Board had voted to close the schools on Wednesday, October 16th and the faculty will assist in registration of draftees.

In these times of uncertainty the Red Cross must be ready to meet any eventualities in the year to come. Join now and keep your Red Cross prepared.

The American Red Cross is meeting its most crucial challenge since the days of the first World War. Needs for strengthening our national defenses have made heavy demands upon the Red Cross—and these demands will increase in the coming year. WAR WITH JAPAN IS BELIEVED CERTAIN Americans today were warned to get out of the far east.

The warning was taken to indicate the United States is expecting war with Japan. Warnings included Americans in Korea, Indo-China the Dutch Indies and China.

Great Britain notified Japan today that Burma Road closed by agreement for 3 months will be opened again on October 17th.

The Burma Road is an overland transport line and mail traveled route from the Indian ocean up through Burma into China and is the only route left open to China to the sea.

The British action was certain to bring war from Japan.

In London well informed government sources said that Germany has begun an invasion of the Balkans.

Winston Churchill in a speech today said that danger of invasion is not passed. The bitter sacrifices ahead are going to be hard to bear, he said. The worst is yet to come and the air war will be terrible. "But we are ready for anything and a lot of things are going to happen to Hitler and Mussolini in the next few weeks. The invasion attempt is sure to come."

Strikes have broken out in Rumania.

London was under the most severe German attack in weeks and last night Berlin was bombed for more than 4 hours.

Churchill said 8500 have been slain in England by German air bombs.

MORAW-WILDER

Miss Laura Wilde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilde of Westphalia, this week became the bride of Anton Moraw of Cameron at the Visitation church in Westphalia in a double ring ceremony with Rev. Robert Shertz officiating. Maid of honor was Miss Amy Geisman of Burlington and Raymond Meek of Ben Arnold acted as best man. Louis Gottschalk of Westphalia was an usher and Miss Theresa Michalka of Cameron was bridesmaid. The bride wore a white velvet dress and carried a bouquet of carnations. The maid of honor chose a royal blue velvet with gold accessories and a wine velvet dress with gold accessories was worn by the bridesmaid. Mr. Moraw is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moraw of Cameron. In 1932 he graduated from Yoe High School. After a wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Cameron.

NATURALIZATION LAWS

A citizen woman who married an Alien prior to March 2, 1907, did not lose her citizenship unless she left the territorial limits of the U. S. A.

Between March 2, 1907, inclusive, and September 22, 1922, exclusive, a citizen woman who married an alien LOST her citizenship even though she continued to reside in U. S. A. EXCEPT that during the world war from April 6, 1917 inclusive, to July 2, 1921, exclusive, the woman did not lose her citizenship during that time but would lose it if married status continued after of cessation of hostilities.

After September 22, 1922, the marriage of a citizen to an alien does not affect citizenship.

PENN WOLF, Clerk District Court, Milam County,

CHINA MAY JOIN AXIS IF DESERTED

Secretary Knox of the United States navy stepped into the war picture today in a bristling statement which was interpreted as the most belligerent gesture made by any American leader since the war began.

Secretary Knox said that Germany, Italy and Japan have aimed their alliance at America. He called the two Dictators brigands and said America is ready to fight all of them. "We will win too, for we have never lost a war. America is ready to meet any challenge thrown by the Dictator Brigands or from any source it may come."

The statement of Knox compared to the milk and water talks of Hull and Roosevelt was much to the liking of American people who have long since tired of the administration's appeasement policy.

Meanwhile a new grave situation had arisen in the far east. Japan was quoted as likely to declare war on England. This was no surprise because when the three powers joined in a solid axis against the British, it was tantamount to a declaration. Japan therefore is expected to enter at once.

The act on which the Japanese will base their declaration of war will be the opening of the Burma road on October 17th the day after the American Embargo on scrap iron goes into effect on Japan.

The British closed the Burma road because Japan requested it. This was another sample of the false policy of attempted appeasing of war nations.

The British are faced with grave developments. China will join with the Axis powers if the road is not opened and if it is opened Japan will declare war. So war it will be.

France believes she was deserted by both England and America and her strength will soon be thrown on the side of the Axis powers. This was the hope of both Mussolini and Hitler. When Russia comes in to make common war in Democratic nations the picture will be complete.

Unless the United States enters the war soon, there was little hope England could long survive. Deserted by every nation in the world because she has fulfilled none of her alliances, the British were believed doomed as Germany renewed her air war on a more intensive basis today.

Kenneth Kirk who is a student of San Marcos State Teachers College spent the week end in Cameron with relatives and friends.

SO IMPORTANT TODAY

The Smallest Item OF THE AVERAGE FAMILY BUDGET IS TP&L SERVICE

TIME AND MONEY are highly important to the average family today. So, therefore, is TP&L service... because it saves time... saves money... saves work, releasing time for other important activities. The housewife who makes full use of TP&L low-cost service for refrigeration, radio, lighting, cooking, cleaning, washing and ironing serves her family best at the lowest cost. And, she keeps her "house in order" for those outside activities which will, more and more, make demands upon the time and abilities of American women.

Rates for TP&L residential service have been reduced repeatedly in the past, lowering the cost of electricity to such an extent that the average family may "live electrically" at a total cost of little more than the "light bill" of the early twenties.

LINE PLAY MAKES VICTORY POSSIBLE

The Yoemen over with their first big job—defeating the Rockdale Tigers—were out in front in the conference race as a favored team today.

While Taylor was defeating Rosebud roundly in the bud city the Yoemen were taking the long end of a bitter contest in the Regal City. The score was 7 to 2 but does not begin to tell the story.

Cameron kicked off to Rockdale. It was the largest crowd ever seen in the Regal City, mostly Cameron fans.

The Yoemen line, playing its usual brilliant game had a star that led the way. Louis Aranda on the first play of the game tackled Newton behind the Tiger line and sent Coach Moorman's lettermen back five yards. It was a series of brilliant defensive plays by Aranda in the opening phases of the game that set the Tigers back on their heels and forced them to kick.

Newton kicked out to his 40 and Bobby Hays fumbled but recovered. The Yoemen were a bit nervous. On a sustained drive led by Bell and Hays the Yoemen made some 20 yards but lost the ball when their offense bogged down.

Both teams were playing fast ball in the opening quarter. The lines were snapping and the tackling was vicious.

For power the Tigers had the edge in the backfield but could never quite beat down that Yoemen defense.

The lone touchdown of the game was made by Hays in the second quarter on a sustained drive down the field aided by a couple of wobbly passes which Aranda and Tindall managed to gather in to advance the Yoemen cause. Hays went over from the 2 in a thrust through tackle, then cut away to sweep the Rockdale left end. It was Aranda who led the play and blocked a path for the speedy quarterback.

A great cheer went up when Salach kicked goal, the first conversion from his toe in a dozen or more goal tries.

The Tigers recovering a fumble a few minutes later lost no time driving down the field. The Yoemen rallied on their own five yard line and stopped the drive.

Taking over Salach snapped the ball to Tindall behind his own goal. He fumbled but recovered and Rockdale got a touch back which was an automatic 2 points and there the score remained for the night.

In the third quarter the Yoemen fought their way to the Tigers 1 foot line. They had marched down the field. Bobby Hays took the ball on a fake shift of the back field and raced around the Rockdale right end to the 1 foot line.

Captain Cecil Tindall, on the fourth down took the ball over but the referee ruled a knee had touched the ground. There was a feeling throughout the crowd another touchdown had been made. Such are the breaks of the game. The score would have been 13 to 2. Newton lost no time in kicking out.

The Tigers got away a few minutes later on a long pass and marched to the Yoemen 35 yard line then Newton kicked out on the five and the Yoemen played for time as the gun sounded to end the game.

Red Bell made a neat 20 yard run through the Tiger team and almost got away for a touchdown in the third quarter. Tindall backed up for a punt and the Tiger line came through. Bell raced on toward the goal. Krause got him at safety. Aranda took a difficult pass from Hays over the Tiger right end, turned toward the goal, fought off two tacklers but was downed before he could break clear. This play originated on the Tiger 25.

The Yoemen were able to break up the Tiger running attack because their ends held. Charlie Kunz was a stand out.

Gooch at guard was hurt in the game and was replaced by Dycus. Both men contributed to the line play.

Brashear and Walschak came through with their usual brand of line play at tackle positions. Mack Nicholson saw a full game of rough play at guard and came through r credit to the team and the Yoemen traditions.

Arthur Cobb, one of the fleet backs of the conference this year had many blocking assignments and was a power on defense as well as offense.

Coach Carol Wood was smiling today and the whole city was praising the Yoemen. They have emerged as contenders and are no longer the underdogs. Taylor seems the real test of the season. The game will be played in Taylor in October 25.

SMITH-CHEEVES

The majestic beauty of the First Methodist Church of Cameron, was the scene of an early twilight ceremony Monday, October 7th when Miss Carolyn Cheeves, daughter of Mrs. Carrie Cheeves and the late S. W. Cheeves, a long time merchant and business man of Cameron, became the bride of Niley J. Smith, Jr., with the Rev. John W. Mills, pastor, reading the impressive ring ceremony.

Myriads of California Bronze Mums in wide spread arrangement in tree ferns formed a beautiful background in artistic arrangement, lending charm and attractiveness under the glow of Ivory tapers in tall pyramid effect. Countless fronds of woodward ferns banked the altar. Two tall floor baskets filled with the chosen flowers and ferns, stood widely apart at either end of the altar. The family and close friends pews were designated by ferns and mums.

Miss Catherine Monroe was at the organ and gave appropriate music as guests assembled. Mrs. A. J. Triggs sang the wedding solo, "Because," with the last strains merging into the ever popular wedding march announcing the bridal party's entrance. The ushers, Carroll Green, cousin of the bride, and Fountain Flinn, brother in law of the bride, of Corpus Christi, led the procession taking their stand at either end of the approach to the altar; the bride groom and best man, H. A. Whitliff of Lufkin, with the minister, took their places at the side of the altar; next came Mrs. John Young of Odessa, who was Matron of honor, followed by the bride who was given in marriage by her brother, Frank Cheeves. Both the bride and Matron wore beautiful creations of Turquoise blue gown, fashioned after same pattern; bodice's were close fitting with floor length skirts, short sleeves with this wore long white kid gloves, with hats of matching material of gowns.

The bride's bouquet was of colonial design of white roses, lilies of the valley and white orchid. The matron of honor's bouquet was of Talisman roses.

The bride received her early school work at Cameron; attended the University of Arkansas, where she pledged Pi Beta Phi, and later received her degree at Texas University. She was formally presented to Central Texas society last season by the Waco Hedonia club, at Waco.

The mother of the bride, wore an attractive dark dress of fine material, and wore a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Smith, mother of the bride groom was also in dark rich navy and wore a corsage of pink carnations.

The bride groom is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Smith; after completing high school work here, at attended A. & M. College, where he graduated two years ago, and since has been associated with his father who is a plantation owner and operator.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Smith will return to Cameron to make their home, and will go to house keeping in a home already furnished in the Green addition to Cameron.

MEAT NOT INSPECTED IS SOLD HERE; ROSEBUD MAN PAYS FINE IN CITY COURT

Chas. Parkus of Rosebud, on a plea of guilty, paid a fine of $14 in city court on a charge of selling beef that had not been inspected by the city marshal.

Gene Smith, city marshal, told the Daily Herald that Parkus killed the animal and brought it to Cameron and sold it, but disclaimed any knowledge of the ordinance that requires inspection.

Meat cannot be sold in Cameron unless it is first inspected. This is the first case to be filed here in some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Fountain Flinn and daughter, Carolyn Flinn of Corpus Christi are visiting in the home of her mother, Mrs. S. W. Cheeves.

Henry Lamar of Rosebud visited in Cameron Sunday en route to Texas A & M College where he is classified as sophomore.

GEORGE CLARK ACCEPTS PLACE WITH CHEVROLET

George Clark of Beaumont has accepted a place as salesman with the Grabein Chevrolet Company in Cameron.

Mr. Clark began his duties with the company Monday morning. Before moving to Cameron he was with Chevrolet dealers in Beaumont.

Mrs. Clark is the former Miss Edna Moody, daughter of Mrs. W. N. Moody and sister of W. C. (Nig) Moody who has been elected District Clerk.

They have one son Lawson Clark who is in school in Cameron. The people of this community welcome these new residents to Cameron.

DELPHIANS

The Cameron Delphian Chapter met with Mrs. Henry Hefley, Oct. 1st, with 13 members present. Subject of the lesson was "The New Regionalism." The Rise of Regionalism was given by Mrs. John Batte, Mrs. Joe Denson gave "Regions in the Nation," "Section of the Nations" was given by Mrs. Hubert Atkinson. Mrs. Jim Barmore talked on "Regions vs. Sections." Guests present other than members were Mrs. George Waller and Mrs. Wiley Mangum. The hostess was assisted by her daughter, Miss Henriem Hefley in serving angel food squares and ice cream.

Jim Perkins of Hearne transacted business in Cameron Friday.

"I CAN PROVE SOUTHERN SELECT IS FINER BEER"

Don't Argue About Beer ... Make the 3-WAY TEST

One man is so enthusiastic about Southern Select quality that he carries on a sort of Southern Select crusade among his friends.

Sometimes he gets into arguments when he says he can prove Southern Select is finer beer. He wins those arguments when he puts Southern Select side-by-side with some other brand and makes his opponents test them for delicate aroma, flavor and absence of after-taste. Then they say "you're right—Southern Select IS finer beer."

You deserve to get full enjoyment from your beer and we say you'll get it when you order Southern Select. Remember Southern Select is the only beer in the South brewed with distilled water!

The Historic Battle of Packsaddle Mountain

By J. W. WILBARGER

From "Indian Depredations in Texas"

FOR several years prior to 1873 Indians had remained peaceful along the Texas border, but in the spring of 1873 they resumed hostilities.

During these peaceful years cattlemen moved their herds farther west and established ranches in Mason, Llano and Burnet counties, a section of the State noted for good grazing and well watered by the Colorado and Llano rivers.

This picturesque part of west Texas also had been the favorite home and hunting ground of the Indians. Only through bitter fighting had they been driven farther west.

It was a surprise therefore to Llano county ranchmen when they discovered in August, 1873, that a band of Indians had returned and camped on Packsaddle Mountain, 16 miles southeast of Llano, in Llano county.

Packsaddle Mountain was formerly an old Comanche Indian stronghold. Its elevation, rocky defiles and dense growth of cedar and oak were natural defenses against an enemy.

Last Survivor of Historic Battle

The recent death of E. D. Harrington, recalled the Battle of Packsaddle Mountain, fought August 10, 1873, between twenty-one Indians and eight cowboys. Harrington was the last survivor of the historic battle.

J. W. Wilbarger's history, "Indian Depredations in Texas," has a detailed report of this battle which, in part, is reproduced below:

"A band of twenty-one Indians came into Llano county and established a permanent camp on Packsaddle Mountain. The Indians had so concealed their movements that no one knew when or why they came. But evidently their motive was pillage and murder, for friendly Indians do not conceal their movements when traveling through the country.

"Late in the afternoon of August 9, 1873, a cow came running up to the Moss ranch with an Indian arrow sticking in her body. This was the first sign that Indians were in the vicinity and also a sign that the Indians were there to commit depredations.

"Eight cowboys had gathered at the Moss ranch for a roundup. When they saw the arrow sticking in the cow they changed their minds about rounding up cattle and prepared to round up Indians.

"Early next morning, armed with Spencer rifles and six-shooters, the cowboys started out to reconnoitre. Six miles from the Moss ranch they came upon a fresh trail—with all the earmarks of an Indian trail—that led off in the direction of Packsaddle Mountain.

Odds of Three to One

"The cowboys halted and held a consultation. They believed the trail was made by Indians and that the Indians were camped on top of the mountain.

"Hoof-marks of the trail indicated more than twenty Indians, odds of almost 3 to 1, but that did not frighten the cowboys. They rechecked their firearms and cautiously followed the trail on up the mountain side.

"When half way up they saw a lone Indian sitting on the ledge of a rock, ostensibly there as a lookout. The Indian held a small looking glass before him and was busily engaged in daubing his face with warpaint. So intent was he at this form of facial adornment that the cowboys were within a few feet of him before he saw them. Startled, he let out a yell and bounded up the trail. The cowboys could have killed the lone Indian, but the report of a gun would have warned the other Indians.

"Following this Indian up the trail, the white men soon came to a small plateau, at one end of which was the Indians' camp and at the other end their horses staked out to graze.

"Dashing in between the Indians and their horses, the cowboys dismounted and made ready for battle.

First Volley Wounds Four Cowboys

"Meantime the Indians, quickly secursisting, poured a murderous fire into the ranks of the savages, which caused them to falter and fall back. Reforming their line quickly, the savages again charged the cowboys, more furiously than before, and with evident intention of driving them from their position at all costs. Desperate fighting continued at intervals on both sides. The Indians had rifles and some of them had six-shooters. The chief was armed with a Winchester repeating rifle. Two things helped to save the cowboys—they were better marksmen than the Indians and fought from a partly sheltered position.

"The savages, incensed at being cut off from their horses, charged the white men repeatedly, but each charge was repulsed with a withering fire.

"Finally the Indians retreated into thick underbrush, in the rear of their camp, which hid them from view.

"The cowboys, assuming that the Indians had abandoned the fight, laid plainly but could not understand since it was delivered in Indian dialect. But from the chief's gestures and fiery speech it seemed he was urging his warriors to make one more effort to whip the white men.

Chief Fights Alone

"The harangue was received coldly by the warriors. They refused to advance. Whereupon the chief, with a contemptuous wave of his hand, turned his back on his warriors and faced the white men. A look of hate and disdain overspread his handsome bronzed features.

"Alone and fearless, he advanced toward the cowboys, firing his Winchester at them as he advanced. The cowboys, out of respect for the chief's bravery, did not fire until he was within a few feet of them, hoping he would surrender. But when convinced that he meant to kill them, rifles flashed and the valiant chief lay dead, pierced by half a dozen bullets.

"As the chief fell, his warriors retreated rapidly into the thicket, carrying with them some of their dead and wounded. Bodies of the chief and two other Indians were left lying on the battle ground.

"The cowboys did not attempt to pursue the Redskins. They had four wounded comrades to look after, three of them dangerously wounded.

"The Indians abandoned all their horses and camp equipage. Among the horses recovered were several fine animals which the savages had stolen from West Texas ranchmen. Included with the camp equipage were many buffalo robes, Navajo blankets, silver-mounted saddles and bridles, Winchester rifle, Henry rifles and six-shooters. One saddle bore the stamp of a manufacturer in Tucson, Arizona. From this and other evidence—all of which proved that these Indians were better armed and better equipped than most Comanches—it was taken for granted that they were Apaches from Arizona.

"This was the last Indian raid and last Indian battle with whites in Llano county. Names of cowboys in the Battle of Packsaddle Mountain were: W. B. Moss and his two brothers, S. R. and S. B. Moss, Eli Lloyd, Archer Martin, Pinckney Ayres, Robert Brown and E. D. Harrington."

Photo of E. D. Harrington who, up to the time of his death, August 5, 1940, was the last survivor of the Packsaddle Mountain Battle.

Our New Defense Bases

By JOHN C. NORRIS

(Washington Post)

BY agreement with Great Britain, the United States becomes possessor of sites for naval and air bases ranging from Newfoundland to British Guiana, strategically so well located as to make our Atlantic defenses immeasurably more secure.

With the construction of strongly fortified bases in the territory to be leased, the Caribbean will be transformed into an American lake, effectively guarding the vital Panama Canal from the East; the enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine becomes less difficult and the frontier of the United States is extended some 700 miles to the East and North.

Under the agreement with Britain, the United States obtains 99-year leases on sites for bases in Newfoundland, Bermuda, the Bahamas, St. Lucia, Trinidad and British Guiana in exchange for 50 over-age destroyers.

Of these bases the most important strategically are those in Newfoundland, Bermuda and Trinidad. They will be what the Navy calls advanced bases rather than main operating bases like those in Hawaii and continental United States, but will be of the greatest importance in the protection of the Nation and hemisphere.

The others, and one or more expected to be established in Nova Scotia as the result of negotiations now underway by a joint Canadian-United States defense board, will supplement these three key spots, plugging in gaps and making the whole chain of defense secure.

Selection of the sites for the bases and a determination of what facilities are to be established will await the recommendations of an Army-Navy board headed by Rear Admiral John W. Greenblat. The group of ten officers went to Bermuda to confer with British experts who must agree with the American group as to the territory to be leased.

A description of the new U. S. bases, extending from Newfoundland on the north to British Guiana on the south, follows below:

Newfoundland

The United States, by the terms of a recent agreement with Great Britain, will lease the southern coast and the Avalon Peninsula. The southern coast is approximately 250 miles long and, at its easternmost end, swings down along a narrow isthmus into the Avalon Peninsula. The peninsula is virtually an island in itself, as it measures 110 miles from north to south and 60 miles from east to west, and is connected to Newfoundland by an isthmus only 10 miles wide. There are plenty of harbors on the peninsula, among them St. John's Harbor, Carbonar Harbor, Conception Bay, St. Mary's Bay and Placentia Bay.

St. John's is about one-third of the way from New York to London and there are already air bases on Newfoundland which have been used by trans-Atlantic fliers.

Bermuda

Bermuda is a 14-mile-long coral island about 700 miles southeast of New York and 580 miles east of Cape Hatteras. The United States has leased the east coast and the Great Sound, the latter being practically inclosed by islands and reefs. On one of these, Ireland Island, is a British Admiralty dockyard and naval establishment, and it has been an important naval base since a steel drydock was towed across the Atlantic and installed there ing weapons, fired a volley into the white men, then charged them in an effort to regain their horses. At the first volley four of the eight cowboys were wounded, three of them severely, which left but five white men to battle twenty-one Indians. But the five, stoutly re-southern coast of which is leased to the United States for 99 years under the agreement. Jamaica has a 144-mile coast line and is the largest island in the West Indies. It lies about 80 miles south of Cuba, and on its south shore there are two large inlets, Old Harbor Bay and Port Royal, which is the harbor for Kingston.

Port Royal has a well-sheltered entrance, easily the best landing place along the south shore although not the only possible one. A limestone plateau runs along the middle of the island, rising up to between 2,000 and 3,000 feet, but near the sea it slopes down so that in some places there are about 10 miles of level land between the ocean and the bluffs.

Antigua

The lease also includes the Island of Antigua, a little spot in the Leeward Islands which is exactly 54 miles in circumference. Antigua would make an ideal air base, as it has no trees or rivers and rises almost straight out of the sea. There are two harbors along the high, rocky coast: St. John, which is the capital, and English Harbor, formerly a British naval depot.

The Leeward Islands are just south of the main body of the West Indies, and below them the line of islands curves sharply inward, pointing toward South America.

St. Lucia

The United States has also leased the west coast of St. Lucia which has a 150-mile coast line and is the largest island in the Windward group. The Windward Islands are about 300 miles north of Venezuela, at a point where the West Indies curve down toward the South American coast.

St. Lucia, aside from being considered one of the most beautiful of the West Indian Islands, is practically a fortress in itself. Mountains rise straight out of the sea to a height of 3,000 and 4,000 feet, their tops hidden in the mist. The only decent landing place for ships is the harbor at Port Castries, which is landlocked and has a 650-foot concrete wharf. Along this part of the west coast the land slopes more gradually to sea level, but shoots 4,000 feet into the air again, with an impressive volcano called Soufriere farther down the coast.

Trinidad

Trinidad is just below the Windward Islands and about 20 miles from the coast of Venezuela. It is an island about 48 miles long and 35 miles wide, and most of it is within a few hundred feet of sea level. The United States base will be on the Gulf of Paria, on the western coast facing Venezuela, formed by a curve in the island, which is 50 miles across.

San Fernando and Port of Spain, the capital of the island, are on the Gulf of Paria, and are kept busy exporting Trinidad products. Aside from rum, molasses and sugar, there is also a respectable oil industry, which, although not mentioned in the recent agreement, might conceivably be of use to an air or naval base. There is also a lake which gives out pitch from which asphalt is produced, which might come in handy for building airplane runways.

British Guiana

The line of defense ends at British Guiana, which is on the north coast of South America just east of Venezuela, and the only British possession in South America. The territory leased to the United States includes the area within 50 miles of Georgetown, the capital of the province, at the mouth of the Demerara River.

The seaboard around Georgetown is all flat, below the level of high water, in fact, and on the eastern part is heavily forested. There is, however, plenty of territory near Georgetown where air bases could be built, and the mouth of the Demerara River offers what looks like a convenient harbor. Fifty miles inland there is a small town which might or might not be appropriate as a base of some sort; at any rate, it is called Berlin.

Winning the Hard Way

By AVIS PLATTER

Rt. 1, Edgewood, Texas.

(Copyright, 1940, by the Southwest Magazine Co.)

ANY things come and go from youth to old age," says Mrs. Lela Mansfield, of El Paso, El Paso county, Texas, route 1, box 279G.

"When Prince Charming comes along one thinks love is all sufficient, but life later proves that love is not bread alone. Nevertheless love, if strong enough, will provide a way. And that way may mean sacrifices a plenty.

"I married a music teacher. As time passed I began to feel him by teaching instrumental music to small children. That was fun, for it was temporary.

"When we had five children old enough to go to school we moved to Desdemona, an oil town in Eastland county. The school was as good as we could hope to find. We planned to see our boys and girls through the Desdemona high school, but our hopes were blighted by a misunderstanding. My husband, in business for himself, had a misunderstanding with a man and was shot in the shoulder. Hospital and doctor bills piled up high, wiping out our little business.

"I had been sewing quite a bit for neighbors as an accommodation and without pay. But now they began paying me for my work. It amounted to $3 or $4 a week, but that helped out a lot until we were again on our feet.

Pinch Hit for Husband

"My husband, when fully recovered, began to sell washing machines. We moved to El Paso. I made washing machine demonstrations for him. Suddenly he was stricken down with diabetes and our second boy sickened and died. I nearly went wild. But I worked harder and harder at the game of selling washing machines. The manufacturer of this machine put on a prize-selling contest and I won the prize for selling the most machines in my district. The prize was a big turkey. We served it Christmas day. Soon thereafter I had a nervous break-down, incurred a big doctor bill.

"Following my recovery, Mr. Mansfield had an accident which hurt his foot. It became infected and was amputated at the ankle.

"We then started a sun-dry laundry. We bought one washing machine, one mangle and several hand irons. A good business was soon built up. A little later we added another washer and a dry-cleaning department. We had six drivers that collected and delivered clothing. At this time we had added two presses and one steam board.

"The bulk of clerical duties was mine. I started work at 5 in the morning and worked until 10 in the evening. I checked in and checked out for all departments, besides many other duties.

Health Fails Again

"One day I passed by the boiler and found it ready to burst. The fireman had gone to sleep on the job. It had three valves. I ran behind the boiler and opened wide one valve. Then I ran like a cotton tail rabbit to the other valves and opened them wide. When I got over my fright I found I had let all the water as well as all the steam out of the boiler. Needless to say the boiler didn't explode.

"We were making money, but my health failed again. So we sold out.

"I found another way to earn money by making candle-wick cushions and bed-spreads. It isn't quick money but eventually shows a profit. Candle-wicking is easy. Bed-spread making is harder but shows a better profit.

"Handkerchiefs are always in demand and easy to make. They can be made at odd times. I make them of bright colors with rolled hems and dainty embroidered flowers. Lace edges are popular. Many women adore them with little pockets embroidered on to hold a powder puff. I examine the various kinds found in stores, then buy linen and make them. They sell well in specialty shops.

"I have worked here and there, and always work at something. You are bound to succeed if you keep going and don't give up in despair. We pay our bills and have seen all our children educated. Our son is a minister and has a pastorate in New Mexico. Our three girls have all finished high school and have had some college training. I feel that our efforts and sacrifices have not been in vain."

Rather Confusing

The dear vicar's wife had just died, and in consequence he wished to be relieved of his duties for the week-end, so he sent the following message to his bishop:
"Dear Bishop: I regret to inform you that my wife has just died, and I should be obliged if you could send me a substitute for the week-end."

Good Riddance

"On next Wednesday evening the Ladies' Aid Society will have a rummage sale," announced the minister. "This is a chance for all the ladies of the congregation to get rid of anything that is hardly worth keeping—bring it to the sale. And don't forget to bring your husbands."

Cold Enough

Arctic Explorer: "It was so cold where we were that the candle froze and we couldn't blow it out."
Second Explorer: "That's nothing. Where we were it was so cold the words came out of mouths in pieces of ice, and we had to fry them to see what we were talking about."

Back to Nature

"You can always tell when you are out of civilization."
"How?"
"There are no more billboards to obstruct the highways."

Busy

"Oh, no, he could not leave his business."

Whom and When

Lecturer: "All my success in life," he said proudly, "all my enormous financial prestige, I owe to one thing only—Pluck. I want all you young men to take that word for your motto."
He paused impressively, and a young man sitting in the front row asked:
"Yes, sir, but won't you please tell us how many and whom did you pluck?"

Lucky for Pat!

An Irishman was telling his friend of his narrow escape at Dunkerque.
"The bullet went in me chest right where me heart is and came out me back."
"But a bullet that went through your heart would kill you."
"Beggurrah, my heart wasn't there! It was in me mouth."

Poultry News Avoid Colds Pullets

Avoid Fall Colds

Fall colds may be avoided to some extent by bringing the birds in off the range before the advent of cold, windy fall nights. It will also be necessary to close up the laying house to cut out drafts, leaving only sufficient openings for adequate ventilation. If drafts are present, they can frequently be detected by observing the droppings. If they are more or less concentrated in spots, that is evidence of draft. The birds, of course, seek the most comfortable areas. Adequate protection against colds also means that the house must be comfortable. Also, it must not be filled beyond capacity, for if the birds are crowded, there is more danger of colds. A disinfectant in the drinking water is an aid if colds start—American Poultryman.

Any Pullets Left on Range

Most poultrymen will have a few of the later-maturing pullets still knocking around on the range at this time. Before the weather gets any colder, it will be well to round up these more or less forgotten pullets from trees and colony houses where they have been spending the night, and get them indoors. If left out much longer, they are likely to get colds and roup to spread among the pullets that have already been housed. Those pullets still on range may be the least desirable, but you might as well pick out the best and house them and realize a few cents on the rest for meat rather than to feed them any longer.

Feed Pullets Well During the Molt

Some pullets hatched in January or early February are molting in order to get them back into production, it is necessary that they get plenty of protein—plenty of feather building material. A wet mash once a day won't hurt. However, if they're molting because they are thin and out of condition, or if the pullets now in production are getting thin, it will be desirable to give them more grain (12 to 14 pounds per 100 birds per day) or a moist fleshing mash consisting of 1/2 yellow cornmeal and 1/2 ground rolled oats moistened with milk. Occasional examination of the birds at night to make sure they are keeping up in body weight will pay.

Bank Director

"Can you direct me to the Merchants Bank?"
"Yes," said the boy, "you just follow me."
Upon arriving at the bank the man asked: "How much do I owe you?"
"A quarter."
"Isn't that a rather high fee?"
"Not for a bank director."

Vivid Description

A Georgia negro evangelist was giving a vivid description of hell.
"Dere will be weeping an' gnashing ob teeth, brethren and sistern," he shouted.
"Glory be, dat lets me out," cried an old negro mammy on the front seat, "'cause Ah ain't got no teeth."
"Teeth!" warned the fervid preacher, "teeth! Don't you believe dat for one minute, Sistah Jackson. Teeth is gwine to be furnished free of charge by de debil."

Suggestion

"Son, why don't you play circus? It's great fun. First you make a sawdust ring."
"But where would I get the sawdust, dad?"
"Here's the saw. Just cut this cord of wood into fireplace lengths and you'll have plenty of sawdust."

Home to Him

Vacationer (on dude ranch)—"Why is it that hog keeps trying to come into my room? Do you suppose he has taken a fancy to me?"
Rancher's Small Son—"Shucks, no. He does that 'cause he grewed up in this room last winter when he was a pig."

Gardening Note

Botanist pupil: "I wish I could be sure of distinguishing plants from weeds. How did you learn?"
Botanist teacher: "Pull 'em out, and if they come up again, they're weeds."

Wooden-Headed

Fond Mother: "There is not another boy in this town as clever as my Charles!"
Visitor: "Go on; how is that?"
Fond Mother: "Well, look at those two chairs. My Charles made them all out of his own head, and he has enough wood left to make an armchair!"

Bewildering English

A Frenchman was relating his experience of studying the English language. "When I discovered that if I was quick I was fast," he said, "and that if I was tied I was fast, if I spent too freely I was fast, and that not to eat was to fast, I was discouraged. But when I came across the sentence, 'The first one won one dollar prize,' I gave up trying to learn English!"

Everything Big in Texas

Some boys in Kansas City were showing a Texas rancher the city.
"What do you think of our stock yards?" they asked him.
"Oh, they're all right, but we have branding corrals in Texas that are bigger," he said.

That night they put some terrapins in his bed. When he had turned back the cover they said:
"Those are Missouri bed bugs."
He peered at them a moment, then smiled. "So they are," he decided. "Young uns, ain't they?"

BRAINS

Medical experts who performed the recent autopsy on Leon Trotsky, murdered in Mexico, were impressed by the size of his brain. It weighed three and a half pounds, one of the biggest ever encountered by Mexican medical authorities.

The largest brain in recorded medical history was that of Ivan Turgeneff. The nineteenth-century Russian novelist had a brain weighing four pounds, ten ounces. Next largest known was the brain of Daniel Webster, the American statesman.

Does the size of the brain afford a true measure of mentality? It has never been proved that an oversize brain connotes genius, but there is evidence that diminutive brains go with mental defectives. Dr. R. J. A. Berry, formerly Professor of Anatomy at the University of Melbourne, made thousands of skull measurements and found that mentally defective children had brains on the average 20 per cent smaller than normal.

There is no fear of God before their eyes. Rom. 3:18.

CHEMICAL WORTH OF MAN

A human being is worth about ten cents at current drug store prices, reports Dr. William A. Pearson, of Hahnemann Medical College. Sixty-five per cent of the compounds which make up the body is just water. In terms of living material, however, the body is equivalent to about 1,000 hen eggs—valued at the more flattering price of $25.—Grit.

CASH IN U. S.

The Federal Reserve Board has estimated that the United States has an unprecedented total of $64,400,000,000 of cash in bank deposits, currency and coin—an average of $489 per person. Most of the increase is due to foreigners' sending their wealth here for safe-keeping during the war.—Associated Press.

EAT LESS TO LOSE WEIGHT

Diet experts maintain that the only sure way to lose weight is to eat less. Exercise, they say, is vastly overrated as an aid to individuals anxious to take off fat.—Pathfinder.

"Yes, sir, the slower-burning cigarette is aces with me. I like all those extras in Camels, including the extra smoking"

STRATOSPHERE PIONEER "TOMMY" TOMLINSON, VICE-PRESIDENT and CHIEF ENGINEER of TWA

He outflew the weather for Extra Speed

● In this "flying test tube," above, "Tommy" Tomlinson pioneered the newest wonder of modern air travel—the Stratoliner.

Skill, vision, perseverance...this veteran flyer has them all—in the extra measure of Mildness, coolness, flavor—the qualities of a fine cigarette—he gets them all in his smoking, with an extra measure of each. He smokes Camels. "No matter how much I smoke," he says, "I always get a fresh thrill out of a slow-burning Camel. That extra flavor is always welcome."

Smokers: SAVE THE COST OF THE STATE CIGARETTE TAX

Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See panel at right.) When you are a Camel smoker, you get this unique economy—and all the extra enjoyment of cooler, milder smoking—the fragrance and delicate taste of finer, more costly tobaccos.

He turned to Camels for Extra Mildness

● Twenty years—7,000 hours of flying—more hours above 30,000 feet than any other flyer. 19 national records for speed and endurance. That's the flying log of "Tommy" Tomlinson (above). His smoking log would read: "I wanted more mildness in my cigarette. I changed to Camels and got extra mildness with a grand flavor."

The way your cigarette burns does make a difference. Slower-burning Camels give you the natural mildness and coolness of costlier tobaccos plus the freedom from excess heat and irritating qualities of too-fast burning. Before you take it for granted you're getting all the pleasure there is to be had, try Camels. Get the extras—including extra smoking (see right).

TEXAS FARM NEWS REPORTS

The peanut crop in Guadalupe county this year will double that raised by farmers there last season, according to Hugo Schmidt, of a Seguin cotton oil company.

It is an unusual fact that the South's cotton crop is a major aid to the production of such other fibers as wool and mohair. Throughout the sheep and goat raising areas, cottonseed cake and meal supply essential protein for the economical production of wool and mohair.

An oil extracted from dehydrated sweet potatoes is several times richer as a vitamin A concentrate than cod liver oil, says Gilbert Wilson, instructor in chemistry at North Texas Teachers' College laboratories. It contains more than 8,000 international units of pro-vitamin A.

More than 16 years after H. A. Nicholson, Robstown farmer, (Nueces county), put feed in a pit silo he emptied it and his cattle readily ate the silage. So far as known it was the oldest silage in Texas, and farm experts believe it demonstrated silage has almost unlimited keeping qualities.

Grape cuttings, set out two years ago, have paid for their care by Mrs. Roy Robinson, food supply demonstrator of the Lucy Lee Women's Home Demonstration Club, Cooke county. She gathered 25 pounds of grapes from one vine grown from cuttings. She sprayed her grape vines as well as her orchard in January when they were dormant, in March when in bloom, and the last of April when putting on fruit, so both fruits and grapes have been free of worms and blight this year.

Buel Gray, of the White Deer community, (Hutchinson county), made a creep feeder that would accommodate from 40 to 50 head of calves, and placed the feeder so the calves could have access to it all the time. Gray is very enthusiastic about this method of beef production since he sold all of his last calf crop at a big advantage. They netted him an average of $57.50 per head above freight, feed, commission, etc. Gray kept very accurate records on this thirty head and found that he had fed them $10.43 of feed each. This included all home grown feed figured at market prices and all purchased protein supplements.

The average Texas 4-H club girl is about 12 years of age. At least more 4-H club girls are 12 than any other age, according to a survey of enrollment cards made recently by Onah Jacks, State girls' club agent and Helen Swift, sociologist for the Extension Service of Texas A. & M. College.

An oddity in fruit trees is being exhibited by Mrs. Betty Underwood, of Denis on, (Grayson county). Mrs. Underwood has in her yard two pear trees, both of which bloomed several weeks ago, and which are now bearing large pears. Recently, however, Mrs. Underwood discovered that one of the trees was beginning to bloom a second time, and later found fruit ready to be picked.

CHAMPION COW

More than 65 tons of milk and 5,200 pounds of butterfat have passed through the udder of this noted Ayrshire cow. Her name is "Miss Violet" and she is owned by Hugh J. Chisholm, Strathglass Farm, Port Chester, New York.

Mrs. Lester Henderson, who lives on a ranch near Eldorado, (Schleicher county), accomplished what was said to be the impossible in raising motherless Anogra kids and lambless Rambouillet ewes together. The ewes got along fine and the kids got their milk and grew. Pioneer ranchmen say it can't often be done, but Mrs. Henderson did it.

In the spring of 1939, Mr. Maxie Wilson, of Rusk county, purchased about 1,000 pounds of mixed lespedeza and sowed it in his pasture. At the same time he cleared out the underbrush, mowed the weeds, and leveled up the ground on approximately 1,000 acres of land. In the spring of 1940 he sowed approximately 3,000 pounds of mixed lespedeza on the cleared land. Just recently Mr. Wilson has sold suckling calves off the pasture, without feeding them a pound of grain, for an average of $49 per head. Mr. Wilson states that it is the first time he has sold a calf for near that much money that came off the grass. "It is the lespedeza that did it," he states.

John Pipkin, of Beaumont, (Jefferson county), reports the purchase of a highly-bred Palomino mare for breeding purposes.

Texas will indeed be a nutty State this year. According to estimates, there will be 12,000,000 pounds more pecans raised this year than last.

Paul Gister, Mill Iron ranch cowboy from Turkey, (Hall county), lost four fingers from his right hand when he roped a steer yearling. The horse and calf tied up on opposite sides of a mesquite tree, and Gister's fingers were jerked off at the joints when his hand was caught in the rope.

Texas grapefruit is shipped to 43 of the 48 American States, and to 19 foreign countries.

It is unlawful to kill or injure a bat in Texas. The reason: Bats eat half their weight in insects each night.

Pelts of southern muskrats are more valuable than those taken in Canada, according to trappers. Texas produces many muskrats each year.

A white sow belonging to P. D. Terrell, of Royse City, (Rockwall county), set what is believed to be a record when she became the mother of 18 pigs. All of the pigs were born alive.

An unusual experience is reported by W. R. Terrell, of Eagle Lake, (Colorado county), who lost 10 head of cattle from poisoning in an odd manner. Over 70 more head had to be treated for the poison, which had blown onto his pasture from a nearby cotton field where poison dust was being spread. A strong wind wafted the dust over where the cattle were grazing, infecting the range.

Eight Texas farmers have written Rep. Sam Rayburn to help them get a government trapper to catch predatory wolves within 35 miles of Dallas, according to report. The farmers who signed the request all live on rural route No. 1 out of Farmersville, (Collin county). They stated wolves are destroying many turkeys and poultry in an area about 10 miles square.

An alligator, believed to have been the destroyer of a number of goats and the attacker of a cow on a river bottom plantation near Crockett, (Houston county), was finally killed and his hide sold for boot leather, according to reports from local citizens. The gator weighed 425 pounds, and measured over 12 feet in length.

A revolutionary new combine has been invented by J. A. James, of Amarillo, (Potter county), and J. L. Tindall. The outstanding feature of the "Two Way Combine" is the wheel arrangement. All three main wheels are pivoted, allowing them to be turned 90 degrees in a few minutes time. With the wheels in this position, the combine may be towed endwise and the entire machine can easily move through a 10-foot gate. Smoother operation and greater efficiency is claimed through use of belt drive rather than chains.

One of the tallest stands of sudan grass on record is reported by C. P. Williams, farmer near Mabank, (Kaufman county), who raised grass with stalks measuring a little over 13 feet in height.

The oldest and perhaps most prolific pear orchard in West Texas is owned by Albert Behrens, resident of the Voca community, (McCulloch county), who set out his orchard in 1893. He expects to gather between 15 and 20 bushels of pears from each tree, and as much as 50 bushels from some. Behrens says he'll use left over pears to fatten his hogs.

A motion picture record of the alfalfa growers industry, and a written history of the crop in Wilbarger county are planned by the County Certified Alfalfa Seed Growers' Association. The association, only farmer-operated organization of its kind in Texas, owns machinery for cleaning and packing the certified seed, and plans the motion picture to show details of the history of alfalfa growing.

R. E. McDonald, in charge of the pink boll worm division of the U. S. Bureau of Entomology and plant quarantine, announces that "we have developed an attachment for an ordinary turning plow, easy to pull by horses or tractor, which completely cuts off the cotton plants several inches below the surface of the ground." Use of these implements will result in a thorough clean-up of boll weevils, McDonald states, and farmers can have them made by the neighboring blacksmith from sample implements on display in various communities.

With a comparatively slight increase in acreage Texas rice farmers have doubled their output and cash return, according to a bulletin issued by the State Department of Agriculture. In 1905, with 214,000 acres planted, the State's production was 6,649,000 bushels. Last year, with 269,000 acres planted, the production was 13,968,000 bushels. Per acre yield had increased to 50.3 bushels in 1939.

Mr. Reese Willrodt, a hog producer in Bellville, (Austin county), finds that he can produce pork at a profit if the job is done right. Mr. Willrodt has two brood sows from which he raised 14 pigs. He put the pigs on a self feeder, fed them a commercial protein supplement, and fed meal at the end of 4½ months. The pigs averaged 225 pounds. They gained 45 pounds each in the last two weeks. When he sold them they topped the market.

If there is doubt about the assertion that terraces, planting of clovers, peas and other legumes and plowing them under for fertilizer, will not restore the fertility of old and worn out land, the "doubting Thomas" would do well to go out to the farm of Henry Guettler, near Old Kindler, (Lavaca county), and take a look at what such practices have done for some of his worn out hillside land that a few years ago would not have produced 10 bushels of corn or 100 pounds of lint cotton per acre. This year he produced 4 bales of cotton on a 4-acre block of this same eroded hillside.

S. L. Baker, of Jacksboro, (Jack county), reports he found a blackeyed pea in a normal egg. The egg had been candled twice by the local stores, and a "black spot" was seen both times. Knowing the egg to be a fresh one, Mr. Baker broke the shell and disclosed a pea floating freely in the white of the egg.

When Hubert Buesing, sheep demonstrator for Cameron county, examined some of his lame sheep he found that they were unable to walk as they should because of their long hoofs. In many cases there was decided lameness; even a decided change in shape of foot. There were no rocks in the pasture to wear the hoofs off. Mr. Buesing used a sharp pocketknife and pinchers, used on horses' hoofs, to trim this excess growth almost to the quick and in such a way as to encourage the hoof to grow back to normal shape.

BIRD MIGRATION

By C. W. G. EFRIG
(Condensed from the Walther League
Messenger in Youth Today)

The natural phenomenon of bird migration is interesting, mysterious to every thinking person, especially to the lover of nature. And it remains a mystery.

A flood of new light, however, has been thrown upon the subject of bird travel recently by the Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture in Washington.

For about 50 years this department has been sending out question sheets to competent ornithologists all over America. On his questionnaire, the scientist notes the names of all the migrant birds passing through his locality, the first and last dates in which they were seen in spring and fall, and so on.

Why do birds migrate at all? Why do they leave us?

Some will answer, "Because it would be too cold for them in winter." That this cannot be the whole reason we can see at once from the fact that the tiny chickadee, the snowflake, and frequently the pine siskin and the redpoll, remain with us all winter. Besides some birds begin to leave us in July and August when there is no sign of cold, and they return early in March when the weather is not yet mild.

Furthermore, why should the birds leave the warm Southland where no cold is to be feared at any time?

We have a spring migration, when the birds travel northward, and a fall migration, when they travel southward. There are probably only two months when no migration takes place at all—January and June.

The beginning of the spring migration is made by the prairie horned-lark and the crow, which usually come in the last week of February. During the first half of March the song sparrow, bluebird, robin, meadowlark, blackbird and redwing arrive. A week later the phoebe, the kingfisher, and the gulls and ducks.

May is the leading month. Huge waves of warblers, finches or sparrows, flycatchers and vireos come in May. The last migrant is the black-poll warbler, which sometimes is first heard in the early days of June.

Weak-winged and timid birds which find their food under cover—as the warblers, the rails, and some sandpipers, finches, thrushes and vireos—migrate during the night, so they may rest during the day and find their food easily. Others, strong of wing, and fearless, birds which find their food more in the open—as the blackbirds and the robin—travel day or night to suit their pleasure. Those with low wings, expert fliers which find their food on the wing—as the swifts, the swallows, the gulls, terns and hawks—journey by day exclusively.

When a ruffed grouse leisurely walks from its summer haunts atop a mountain and goes down for a mile to the nearest spruce swamp, that is a migration. Some birds breeding in the Rocky mountains descend a mile or two, and a migration has taken place. The song sparrow and the robin fly several hundred miles when spring comes. The golden plover travels about 8,000 miles. The arctic tern, king of the flyways, wings his way from antarctica clear to the arctic, 11,000 miles away.

Casualties occur during migration; disaster overtakes single birds as well as whole flocks. Sometimes the birds fly low, and many strike steeples and lighthouses. And when birds flying northward meet a fierce gale from the north, thousands of the weak-winged are hurled into watery graves.

The Biological Survey studies have given us these facts. But no one has any accepted explanation for the unerring certainty with which birds will cover thousands of miles of land and open sea to come to rest this month in exactly the same spot where they spent last summer.

It is supposed that they have some sort of inherited migratory "instinct." But whether the seat of this sense lies in their ears, their nasal passages, or their sharp eyes, whether birds can identify air currents, or whether they actually are possessed of a so-called "magnetic sense," there is no telling.

ICE CREAM

Well over 1,000,000 cows give their all the year 'round to satisfy the longing for ice cream—whether it be in the form of nickel cones or fashionable peach bombe.

Gone are the days when ice cream was something to be made on the back porch for the Fourth of July. It's now big business.

Americans eat upward of 1,500,000,000 quarts annually. To produce that amount, the United States has more than 5,000 plants. They use 192,000,000 pounds of sugar, 136,000,000 pounds of butterfat, 137,000,000 pounds of milk solids other than fats, and 4,000,000 pounds of food gelatin.

Although predominant preference is still for vanilla and chocolate flavors—vanilla alone accounts for more than half the U. S. consumption—there is considerable demand for fruit brands.

Favorite flavor next to vanilla and chocolate is strawberry, and the industry uses about 10,000,000 quarts of strawberries a year. Other fruits demanded in lesser quantities include raspberries, peaches, cherries, nectarines, loganberries, oranges, lemons, apricots, bananas and pineapples.

Ice cream manufacture is not confined to any one region, because of the difficulties of transportation. Urbanized States are the largest consumers. Five States which eat the most ice cream are Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, California and Michigan. The U. S. A. is the biggest per capita consumer of ice cream, but that doesn't mean it's indigenous to these shores. As early as the 14th century Marco Polo found the Chinese using a recipe very similar to ice cream recipes now used in the U. S.

Ice cream making as an industry started about the time of the American Revolution; it was first advertised in U. S. newspapers in 1777. Dolly Madison, wife of President Madison, did much to popularize it as a dessert by serving ice cream at a swanky White House dinner.

Since then it has pretty well popularized itself. U. S. per capita consumption has increased eight times since 1900.

NAMING U. S. VESSELS

Following an written law, United States navy vessels are named according to strict precedent. Battleships always bear the names of States; cruisers are named for cities; destroyers for deceased naval officers, secretaries of the navy or heroic enlisted men; transports bear the name of Marine Corps generals; minesweepers are named for birds.

Our Boys and Girls

AUNT MARY, Editor, 1809 Ashland, Fort Worth, Texas.

DEAD FRIENDS:

By this time most of our boys and girls are well into their school work. From all over the State come encouraging reports from school heads. The general opinion is that young folk have started their school work with more vim and determination than heretofore. Maybe this is due to the seriousness of the times, the registration of our youth for army training and the gigantic preparations by our government for defense of the Americas.

My sincere wish and hope are that our young boys and girls will make good use of their time—every golden minute. Remember, that when you waste time you waste something very precious. It is gone, never to return.

With love,
AUNT MARY.

STORIES THAT LIVE

From the Land of the Rising Sun comes many lovely stories that have originated in the myths and traditions of the past. Here is a delightful story from that far away place known as Japan:

"The Child of the Forest"

SAKATO - NO - TOKI - YUKI was a brave warrior at the court of Kyoto. He fought for the Minamoto against the Taira, but the Minamoto was defeated and Sakato's last days were spent as a wandering exile. He died of a broken heart. His widow, the daughter of a noble house, escaped from Kyoto and fled eastward to the rugged Ashigara Mountains. No one knew of her hiding-place, and she had no enemies to fear save the wild beasts who lived in the forest. At night she found shelter in a rocky cave.

A son was born to her whom she named Kintaro, the Golden Boy. He was a sturdy little fellow, with ruddy cheeks and merry laughing eyes. Even as he lay cooing in his bed among the ferns, the birds that alighted on his shoulders peeped trustfully into his eyes, and he smiled. Thus early the child and the birds were comrades. The butterfly and the downy moth would settle upon his breast, and tread softly over his little brown body.

Kintaro was not as other children—there was something strange about him. When he fell, he would laugh cheerily; if he wandered far into the wood, he could always find his way home; and, when little more than a chubby child, he could swing a heavy axe in circles around his head. In the remote hills he had no human companions, but the animals were his constant playfellows. He was gentle and kind-hearted and would not willingly hurt any living creature; therefore it was that the birds and all the forest folk looked upon Kintaro as a friend and one of themselves.

Among Kintaro's truest friends were the bears that dwelt in the woods. A bear would often carry him on her back to her home. Her cubs ran out and greeted him joyfully; they romped and played together for hours. They wrestled and ran races in friendly rivalry. Sometimes Kintaro would clamber up the smooth-barked monkey-tree, sit on the topmost branch, and laugh at the vain attempts of the shaggy little fellows to follow him. Then came supper-time and the feast of liquid honey.

But the Golden Boy loved best of all to rush through the air with his arms around the neck of a gentle-eyed stag. Soon after dawn, the deer came to awaken the sleeper, and, with a farewell kiss to his mother and a morning caress to the stage, Kintaro sprang on his back and was carried, with swift bounds, up mountainside, through valley and woods, until the sun was high in the sky. When they came to a leafy spot in the woods and heard the sound of falling water, the stag stopped and grazed on the high grass while Kintaro bathed in the foaming torrent.

Thus mother and son lived securely in their home among the mountains. They saw no human being save the few woodcutters who penetrated thus far into the forest, and these simple peasants did not guess their noble birth. The mother was known as Yama-uba-San, "The Wild Nurse of the Mountain," and her son as "Little Wonder."

Kintaro reigned as prince of the forest, beloved of every living creature. When he held his court, the bear and the wolf, the fox and the badger, the marten and the squirrel, and many other furry courtiers sat around him. The birds, too, flocked at his call. The eagle and the hawk flew down from the distant heights; the crane and the heron swept over the plain, and feathered friends without number thronged the branches of the trees. He listened as they told of their joys and their sorrows, and he spoke graciously to all, for Kintaro had learned the language and the lore of the animals, the birds and the flowers from the Tengus, the wood-elves.

The Tengus, who lived in the rocky heights of the mountains and in the top-most branches of lofty trees, befriended Kintaro and became his teachers. As he was truthful and good, he had nothing to fear from them; but the Tengus are dreaded by deceitful boys, whose tongues they pull out by their roots and carry away.

These elves are strange creatures, with the body of a man, the head of a hawk, long noses, and two powerful claws on their hairy hands and feet. They are hatched from eggs, and in their youth have feathers and wings; later they molt and wear the garb of men. On their feet are still-like clogs about twelve inches high. They stalk proudly along with crossed arms, head thrown back, and chins and noses held high in the air, hence the proverb, "He has become a Tengu."

The headquarters of the tribe are in the Cyama Mountains where lives the Dai-Tengu, their leader, whom all obey. He is even more proud and over-bearing than his fellows, and his nose is so long that one of his ministers always precedes and protects him that it may not be injured. A long gray beard reaches to his girdle, and a mustache hangs from his mouth to his chin. His sceptre is a fan of seven feathers, which he carries in his left hand. He rarely speaks, and is thus accounted wondrous wise. The Raven-Tengu is his chief minister; instead of a nose and mouth he has a long beak. Over the left shoulder is slung an executioner's axe, and in his hand he bears the book of Tengu wisdom.

The Tengus are fond of games, and their long noses are useful in many ways. They serve as swords for fencing, and as poles on the point of which to balance bowls of water with gold-fish. Two noses, joined together, form a tight-rope on which a young Tengu sheltered by a paper umbrella and leading a little dog, dances and jumps through hoops, while an old Tengu sings a dance-tune and another beats time with a fan. Some among the older Tengus are very wise. The most famous of all is he who dwells on the Kurama Mountain, but hardly less wise is the Tengu who undertook the education of Kintaro. At nightfall he carried the boy to the nest in the high rocks. Here he was taught the wisdom of the elves, and the speech of all the forest tribes.

One day, Little Wonder was at play with some young Tengus, but they grew tired and flew up to their nests, leaving Kintaro alone. He was angry with them, and shook the tree with all his strength, so that their nest fell to the ground. The mother soon returned and was in great distress at the loss of her children. Kintaro's kind heart was touched, and with the little ones in his arms he clambered up the tree and asked pardon. Happily they were unhurt, and soon recovered from their fright. Kintaro helped to rebuild the nest, and brought presents to his playfellows.

So it happened that as the hero, Raiko, who had fought so bravely against the Oni, passed through the forest, he came upon Little Wonder wrestling with a powerful bear. An admiring circle of friends stood around. Raiko, as he looked, was amazed at the strength and courage of the boy. The combat over, he asked Kintaro his name and his ancestry, but the child could only lead him to his mother. When she learned that the man before her was indeed Raiko, the mighty warrior, she told him of her flight from Kyoto, of the birth of Kintaro, and of their secluded life in the mountains. Raiko wished to take the boy away and train him in arms as a warrior, but Kintaro loved the forest. When, however, his mother spoke he was ready to obey. He called together his friends, the bear and the birds, and in words that are remembered to this day, bade them farewell.

The mother would not follow her son to the land of men, but Kintaro, when he became a great hero, often came to see her in the home of his childhood.

The peasants of the Ashigara still tell of the Wild Nurse of the Mountains and Little Wonder. (Reprinted with permission of Houghton, Mifflin and Co. The story was written by Frank Rindor and published in "Myths From Many Lands.")

SPIDERS

For thirty million years spiders have been on earth, according to nature students, and man has long hunted them for scientific study. The Museum of Natural History's spider collection was enriched recently by 5,000 specimens gathered in the West. Among them were many new species to be added to the approximately 40,000 known kinds throughout the world.

According to entomologists, there is only one spider that is dangerously venomous—the black widow. Its bite is poison-loaded and occasionally a victim dies; but if the bite is treated promptly and correctly it is not fatal, and it is painful for just a short time. Spiders are afraid of men, and it is their fear usually that causes them to bite.

Spiders are industrious little creatures, ceaselessly working on insect pests which, unless checked would ultimately overrun the earth. In the intricate webs they spin are caught ants, beetles, mosquitos, flies, moths and wasps. One South American spider is said to kill snakes. The spiders attack their prey when it flies, crawls or falls into the sticky meshes of their web. Near-sighted, except in rare cases—despite the possession of eight eyes—they are led to the unfortunate victim by the vibration of the web. They paralyze their quarry with a sting; then, binding the catch securely with the strong, flexible thread they drag it to their near-by home.

STAR ANIMAL JUMPERS

A bull elk recently attempted to win the animal kingdom's high-jump championship by following a 30-yard run with a 9-foot leap over the fence of an Oklahoma wild-life refuge. Although many animals have no occasion to leap, certain species are required by their way of life to jump high, wide or handsome.

Virginia deer whose leaps are generally restricted to jumping over fallen trees, have sometimes cleared a 6-foot wire fence. Texas deer have leaped ranch fences higher than 6 feet.

According to the American Museum of Natural History, jumping from ledge to ledge is routine locomotion for the wild mountain goat. Although its upward leap seldom exceeds 4 feet, the animal can reach a lower ledge with a 20 to 25-foot downward jump. Domestic kids, usually considered less agile than their mountain cousins, have been known to leap playfully from the running board to the roof of a car.

Highest and longest leaps are made by antelopes, whose jumps of ten to 12 feet in height and 30 to 35 feet in length, give superspeed for traversing the plains.

Sole method of locomotion for the kangaroo is a 20 to 30-foot bound which easily ranks as the most awkward leap in the animal world.

Lions, the King of Beasts, when not performing as a circus high hurdler, use a 30-foot horizontal leap surpassed only by the antelope.

Normally not a leaping animal, the horse may be trained to make jumps of several feet. Record jump was made by the late Heather Bloom, who cleared an 8-foot-2 fence. —New York Times.

FASHIONS FOR FALL

With winter not far away, we are beginning to think in terms of wool and warm fabrics.

Sauntering through the modern department store we feel as if we might have stepped back almost a century when we see the styles offered for this season. It is a fortunate granddaughter who has grandmothers trunk to rummage through. Practically all she will have to do is to slash several inches off the bottom of grandmother's dress—loosen the waist line a little (modern girls have much larger waists) and she will be able to walk out in the most modern of clothing.

Fall is starting off with an unaccustomed splash of color. There's a golden green that is being called khaki, but it is in reality a far more romantic shade than that customarily associated with army uniforms. You will find this color in many of the ready-made dresses and in various qualities of material by the yard. The most attractive feature of this color is that it will blend and harmonize with almost any other shade.

Light brown runs to a fawn shade, and is very lovely on young girls. Shadowy grays are frequently used; in many a costume two shades are balanced against each other. There's plenty of black to be seen in every store. Many girls from rural communities and small towns are going to larger towns to school for the first time. They are anxious to look as well as their city cousins and this is but natural and the right of every girl. The best help you can get in selecting the right clothes is your local "home demonstration agent." It is part of their training to know the right things to wear. They are for the most part eager to serve the home folk in such capacity. Just a word to mother: a few well chosen dresses with nice accessories will be worth much more to the happiness of your child than a large number of unbecoming ones.

Costume jewelry is very important to the well dressed woman. Of course, we all know that patriotic jewelry is still much the rage. The best designers suggest that the smaller well-made pieces are to be preferred to the larger gaudy ones. The American eagle is soaring to a place high in style popularity. Its golden spread wings glitter on many a belt buckle and milady's hat. Choose your jewelry carefully and you can freshen many a dress with a new pin, buckle or bracelet. Young girls will find each of the new creations a real joy.

FOOD FOR CHILDREN

During the cold days of winter our children need a great deal of energy food for work, play and study. We should exercise care, however, to not overload their little stomachs. A child who is an abnormally large eater should be encouraged to eat a little less until a normal condition is attained. Overcrowding the stomach of a child will result in enlargement of vital organs that will later cause disturbing digestive conditions. Eating and drinking just before retiring for the night is also detrimental to health as well. The evils of eating between meals is well known to every alert mother.

In the farmers bulletin, No. 1674, put out by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, we read: "begin early to give the child a carefully chosen variety of foods at regular meal-times, and he or she will gradually form habits of eating that will influence nutrition throughout life. A strong healthy body depends upon a wholesome appetite, the right food, and good health habits from the start." It is well to remember that hunger is natural, but that appetite is cultivated. A healthy child who has an abundance (but not too much) of the right kind of food grows normally, is contented and well developed.

The legs are straight and strong, and the weight satisfactory for build, height and legs. The teeth are normal and hair glossy, smooth and not brittle. The skin is clear and color good. There is an alert expression and bright clear eyes with no dark circles underneath. If active, there is a good appetite for meals. Check your boy or girl against all this herein mentioned and see how they score.

A regular schedule of three meals a day with the food requirements divided fairly even, seems to work best for most children. If one meal is slightly larger it is usually given at midday. Many children sleep more soundly when the evening meal does not include heavy foods; any food that seems to interfere with sound sleep should not be given. Coffee, tea and carbonated beverages should be barred from young children's diets altogether.

If a very active child becomes exceedingly hungry between meals, additional food may consist of orange juice or some other fresh fruit, such as an apple, or a peach, or sometimes a glass of milk. If this should spoil the appetite for next meal the extra food should be discontinued and the child persuaded to be a little less active for a few days. Sometimes a sense of hunger is in reality the result of loneliness or the lack of something to supply interest. Supply this interest and you will overcome, to some extent, this bad habit.

Simply prepared dishes in which the natural flavor of the food is retained make the most wholesome and attractive meals for children and adults as well. This does not mean that foods should be bland and tasteless in order to be suitable for children. On the contrary, they should be attractive and tasty, since early childhood is the best time to develop an appreciation for pleasing food flavors and good standards of how and why to eat it.

In homes where the grown-ups have a well-balanced diet, not too rich in fat or too highly seasoned, little if any difference is made in preparing food for the children. The mother who chooses dishes suitable for the whole family greatly lightens her work of meal planning and food preparation. If adults insist on richer, more highly seasoned food than the children should have, it is still not necessary to prepare two different sets of foods. In such cases, high seasoning, extra fat or more sugar may be added after portions have been taken out for the children. Modification can be easily made in many meat dishes, in vegetable and dessert cookery. Such a simple practice as giving children vegetables without rich sauces or fruit when the dessert is not suitable for them, is often the only kind of adjustment necessary for the family menu.

WE DINE

"Variety is the spice of life," said a noted man. The good cook may say that "spice is the life of variety." Here are a few old favorites that are "spiced up" a bit to add variety to your menu:

Potato Croquettes

3 cups rice hot potatoes, add 3 tablespoons melted butter 2 egg yolks 1/2 tsp. salt 1/2 cup milk Dash of red pepper 1 tsp. minced parsley Beat thoroughly and shape into croquettes. Fry in hot deep fat 365 degrees for 3 to 5 minutes.

Turkey Soup

When cooking the Thanksgiving turkey, save the neck, gizzard and feet. Put these in a saucepan with bones in cold water. Add sliced carrot, onion, leek, small piece of celery, 5 peppercorns (whole black pepper) and allspice. Take the giblets out when tender, simmer the remainder for one hour; press through a sieve, then add the giblets that have been cut into very small pieces. Bring the whole mixture to a near boil; add a sparkling of finely cut parsley. Serve very hot. If you like a thicker soup add two or three tablespoons of oatmeal to the original mixture. Some people like the addition of rice at the time diced giblets are returned to the soup.

Cracker Pie Crust

For the family that is pie hungry, yet young children prevent frequent servings; the following is an excellent substitute. It is not nearly so difficult to digest.

Crust

21 Graham crackers, finely crushed 1/4 cup powdered sugar 1/2 cup butter Mix above ingredients thoroughly and pat mixture firmly with palm of hand in greased 9-inch or 10-inch pie plate. Put in refrigerator and chill thoroughly before filling with:

Milk and Prune Cream Pie

1 level tbsp. gelatin 1/4 cup cold water 1/4 cup prune pulp 1/4 cup prune juice or water 2 tablespoons sugar 1 tablespoon lemon juice 1/2 grated lemon rind 1/4 teaspoon salt 1 cup cream, whipped Soak gelatin in cold water, standing dish in hot water. Cook remaining ingredients, with exception of cream, for two minutes. Add softened gelatin to hot prune mixture. Allow to cool. When mixture commences to thicken, fold in stiffly beaten cream. Fill chilled pie shell with filling and place in refrigerator. Serves 8. All measurements level.

FIRST ATLANTIC FLYER

Lindbergh wasn't the first man to fly the Atlantic non-stop, but the sixty-sixth. That 66 includes not only Alcock and Brown, who flew by plane from Newfoundland in 1919, but also the 31 men of the R-34, the English dirigible which flew over and back in 1919, and the 32 people who came over in the dirigible.—Scribner's Commentator.

RAT POPULATION

The rat population of the United States is double the human population, according to a report to the American Chemical Society on the development of insecticides. Each rat does at least two dollars' worth of damage annually, a total of more than $500,000,000.—New York Times.
